Chelsea is one of those rare people you work with that you wish you could have alongside you for the duration of your career. She's supremely motivated in all the right ways: she's the first to offer help, and she's always looking for ways to improve herself, the team, and ultimately, the company. This work ethic and thirst for knowledge, combined with her solid skills and great personality, make her one of those people that will make any team of which she is a member much stronger.
